Farmingville, NY - On May 29, Supervisor Ed Romaine participated in Cablevision's "Power to Learn" teaching program event held in the auditorium at the Eastport-South Manor Junior-Senior High School. The Supervisor addressed 7th Grade Social Studies students, speaking about his role in local government and encouraging them to get involved with their communities. He also fielded questions from the students on a variety of subjects including the environment, recycling and the war on drugs.

"As a former teacher myself, I was happy to spend time with the students," said Supervisor Romaine. "Their projects were well researched and they asked some very good questions, which showed how well they understand the way government works. I thank Cablevision for giving me the opportunity to be part of this very worthwhile learning program and I look forward to doing it again in the future."

"Power to Learn" is Cablevision's nationally recognized education initiative that empowers students from Kindergarten through grade 12 to learn by making technology in the classroom useful and by facilitating the home-school connection. For more information, visit www.powertolearn.com.
